IF I COULD SAVE WINE IN A BOTTLE . . .

. . . the first thing that I'd like to do is save it in a large format bottle . . . like in 6Ls from Piña Napa Valley and Lamborn Family Vineyards. Wine ages as air moves in and out of the cork, interacting with the flavor components of a wine. With large format bottles, you've got the same surface area for air transfer, that tiny cork, but a much larger volume of wine. The result is that these bottles age at half the speed of their 750ml counterparts.

HOWELL MOUNTAIN AVA FOUNDERS LOT

Impress your family and friends with a bit of wine history with this selection of Howell Mountain AVA anniversary vintages from our Howell Mountain AVA Founders: Randy Dunn (Dunn Vineyards), Mike Beatty (Howell Mountain Vineyards), Bill Smith (La Jota Vineyard Co.), Bob Lamborn (Lamborn Family Vineyards) and Bob Brakesman (Summit Lake Vineyards & Winery).

These gentlemen got together in the early 1980s to establish an American Viticultural Area (AVA) to distinguish their unique wine growing region from that of the Napa Valley AVA. They rolled out a topographical map and weighted down the corners with the wine bottles they had brought to share. After thoughtful discussion of what made their wine-growing region distinctive from the rest of the Valley, they agreed that one key characteristic of their appellation was its distinctive climate—positioned well above the valley floor.

Typically rivers, creeks, mountain peaks and property lines define an AVA, but these founders determined that the Howell Mountain AVA boundaries ought to be defined by the mountain's 1,400-foot elevation contour line, which placed their vineyards above the fog when it rolls in from the ocean and socks in the Valley below.

After reviewing the evidence of the boundaries and elevations of the region, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms ruled Howell Mountain was, indeed, worthy of granting a new AVA. So in 1983, Howell Mountain was officially designated as the first AVA within the Napa Valley AVA.

And the rest, as they say, is history.
